2011 Atlanta Music Festival: Songs of Aspiration, Hope, and Progress

In 1910 members of First Congregational Church were denied admittance to Metropolitan Opera performances in Atlanta. Their response was the creation of the "Atlanta Colored Music Festival," which featured the most prominent African American concert artists of the time. Dwight Andrews, pastor of Atlanta's First Congregational Church, in association with Emory University has revived his congregation's music festival tradition in a ten-year collaboration with Steven Darsey and Meridian Herald. Tickets to the concert may be purchased by contacting the Emory Box office directly at 404-727-5050. Link to Emory's website to read more about this event.
